were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Smith, Mrs. Amory's step-father and her mother, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. W. Vandervoef, all of New York; and Mr. Amory's father, Robert Amory of New York and Boston. Dancing was downstairs in the Amory's house. Robert Amory III had a hand in doing the Japanese lantern lighting, assisted by his younger brother, Daniel. The lanterns dotted a trellis which Mrs. Amory had painted and entwined with sprays of ivy.

At the other end of the room was a blue and gold spinnaker which will eventually be used on the 26-foot boat that Robert Amory has almost completed in his private boat yard just in front of his garage.

For the dance Mrs. Amory wore a white silk organza printed in huge rose colored tulips.

ANNIVERSARY WALTZ

MR. AND MRS. Robert Amory Jr., he's Deputy Director, Central Intelligence, celebrated their 20th wedding anniversary with a dance for about 200 of their friends Tuesday evening at their home on Duxbury terrace. Earlier the Amorys were guests of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt.

Mary Armstrong and Robert Amory were married at St. James' Church in New York Tuesday. Mrs. Amory's maid of honor at the ceremony, now Mrs. Thomas Thacher, with Mr. Thacher, were here from New York for the celebration.
